POSITION AVAILABLE

TEAM LEADER

The Canadian Tobacco Research Foundation (CTRF) is seeking a Team Leader who will oversee all aspects of an established applied research program for flue-cured tobacco production situated in Southwestern Ontario. The Team Leader provides scientific leadership to a research team that has a successful track record of developing new varieties for Canadian production, effective control methods for diseases and insects, and improved management practices and new technologies in the areas of agronomy, curing and storage.

The responsibilities of the Team Leader include supervision of the research team and projects, identification and achievement of research goals and priorities, peer review of project proposals and reporting, hiring of team members, performance reviews, preparation and monitoring of budgets, purchase approvals, and liaising with grower cooperators to coordinate on-farm research trials. The Team Leader also oversees and plays an integral role in the interaction of the research team and project results with growers, processors, and extension and regulatory agencies.

As the ideal candidate, you have a post-secondary education in agriculture with experience in the following: leadership, management of human, financial and material resources, applied agricultural production research, agricultural extension, and flue-cured tobacco production. You also have knowledge of statistics, proficiency with computer productivity software, and strong verbal and written communication skills.

A more detailed statement of responsibilities may be obtained by sending an email to mitchell.richmond@ctrf1.com

Closing Date for Applications: Friday, January 22, 2021

Salary: Dependent on qualifications and experience.

Please submit CV and a statement of interest (letter format) to one of the following:
